Mori Seiki Techno, Ltd.
Opening of the Higashi Osaka Technical Center

Mori Seiki Techno, Ltd., a consolidated subsidiary of Mori Seiki Co., Ltd., recently opened the Higashi Osaka Technical Center in Higashi Osaka City.

As a subsidiary 100% owned by Mori Seiki, Mori Seiki Techno has been offering three services to improve customers' equipment: the overhaul, rebuilding and upgrading of machine tools.   By opening the new Higashi Osaka Technical Center, they have strengthened their sales of retrofitted machines which have been rebuilt or whose leases have expired.

The amount invested was approximately 100 million yen, and the building has an area of about 600 m^2.

The Higashi Osaka area is home to many small and medium-sized manufacturing businesses, and is one of the foremost manufacturing centers in Japan.   There is also strong demand for second-hand machines. By establishing a Technical Center in this region, Mori Seiki Techno will be able to respond to their customers' many requests even more quickly than before.

On September 26 about 70 guests, including distributors and others, gathered for the opening ceremony. The Higashi Osaka Technical Center will start with a staff of two, including the Regional Manager, and this will increase to five from April next year.

From now on, Mori Seiki Techno will consist of two bases, the Higashi Osaka Technical Center and the head office at Yamato-Koriyama in Nara, and will meet the needs of a wider range of customers by offering even more comprehensive services.
